Under this agreement:

- Comlux will handle the full cabin completion of six A220 and two A321 (plus additional options), including structure, systems, interiors, connectivity, and bespoke features.
- Magnifica Air will integrate these aircraft into its inaugural fleet, enabling it to deliver a private-jet–style experience on scheduled services.
- The program is designed to combine the performance and economics of the A220 airframe with VIP-level cabins and service.

Comlux already has deep experience with the Airbus ACJ TwoTwenty program. It is the exclusive completion partner of Airbus for the first seventeen ACJ TwoTwentys and has already successfully delivered multiple completed cabins. While not part of the ACJ TwoTwenty exclusivity, this deal validates the performance and strong future of the airframe.

Magnifica Air plans to base operations in specially configured VIP terminals and use smaller, more exclusive gateways to reduce crowding and enhance the passenger experience.

Adam White, CEO Comlux America said: “This deal not only strengthens Comlux’s existing backlog of completion projects, but it validates the strategic positioning and transition we have been undergoing over the past few years. In addition to the 17 exclusive cabins on the ACJ TwoTwenty, it demands the same consistent, reliable, quality interiors inside the newest commercially viable airframes expanding all of the benefits of a private charter, or ownership, to a wider customer base. This collaboration marks a significant step toward a new future in premium air travel and we couldn’t be more excited.”

Wade Black, CEO of Magnifica Air says, “In aviation, what people remember most is how you made them feel. That’s why we’ve chosen to partner with Comlux — the best in the business when it comes to exceptional outfitting. This partnership represents a global handshake grounded in our shared dedication to craftsmanship and excellence.”

- The deal strengthens Comlux’s backlog of completion work and positions its Indianapolis facility as a hub for high-end narrowbody outfitting. >>>
